

ZENITH DIRECTIONAL SIGNAGE

Contemporary directional signage

Furnitubes' Zenith directional sign is a modern variation of a traditional fingerpost, comprising a polished stainless steel column and cast aluminium arms. Arms can be supplied with a square or angle ended, with lettering in a number of standard font styles, and with symbols and logos as required. The unique telescopic spigot allows additional (or fewer) arms to be used in future without the need for extending or cutting down the original spigot. There are three standard complementary finial designs.

Standard available fonts

All of the font options available for our traditional directional signage can also be used on the Zenith signs, but the sans-serif styles below are generally best suited to the contemporary appearance of this range. If you are unsure as to which font and size you prefer, the best colour combination, or what size arm you may need to fit your wording we are happy to illustrate various options for your consideration.
